

7th Annual Privacy Papers for Policymakers
CALL FOR NOMINATIONS
Deadline: October 3, 2016

The Future of Privacy Forum (FPF) invites privacy scholars and authors with an interest in privacy issues to submit finished papers to be considered for FPF's annual Privacy Papers for Policymakers Award

PURPOSE

- To recognize the year's leading privacy research and analytical work that is relevant to policymakers in the United States Congress, at U.S. federal agencies, and for data protection authorities internationally.
- To highlight important work that analyzes current and emerging privacy issues and proposes achievable short-term solutions or new means of analysis that could lead to real-world policy solutions.
- To advance academic-industry collaboration in support of the National Privacy Research Strategy
- To showcase the winning authors and summaries of their work in an annual Privacy Papers for Policymakers Digest, to be distributed to a wide range of U.S. and international policymakers.

REVIEW PROCESS

- Submission will be evaluated in: (1) Originality; (2) Applicability to policymaking; & (3) Overall quality of writing.
- Submissions will receive an initial ranking from a broad range of privacy field experts, including academics, privacy advocates, and Chief Privacy Officers on FPF's Advisory Board.
- A panel of Judges will select winners to receive Future of Privacy's 2016 Privacy Papers for Policymakers Award.

DEADLINE

- Please submit finished papers and/or nominations on or before October 3, 2016.
- Submit work to papersubmissions@fpf.org

SUBMISSION REQUIREMENTS

- One PDF file that includes a 1-page Abstract or Summary
- For each Author: name; email; phone number; mailing address; and full job title or affiliation
- Note: winning authors will also be asked for a professional headshot and 75 to 250 word biography.
- Papers were completed, accepted for publication, scheduled for publication, or published in the last 12 months.
- Academic papers, book chapters, empirical research, or any other completed longer-form analysis are accepted.
- Authors are encouraged to submit their own work, or be nominated by others.

AWARDS EVENT

The Future of Privacy Forum will invite winning authors to present their work at an annual event with top policymakers and privacy leaders in Washington, DC on January 11, 2017 (the day before FTC's PrivacyCon). FPF will also publish a printed digest of the summaries of the winning papers for distribution to policymakers in the U.S. and abroad.

The 7th Annual Privacy Papers for Policymakers is supported by National Science Foundation award #1654085. Any opinions, findings, conclusions or recommendations presented in the papers will not be reviewed by the National Science Foundation and will not necessarily reflect the views of the National Science Foundation.

Future of Privacy Forum ♦ 1400 I St. NW Ste. 450 ♦ Washington, DC 20005 ♦ www.fpf.org
Questions/Inquiries: papersubmissions@fpf.org Media: mbates@fpf.org
For previous years' winners, visit: <https://fpf.org/privacy-papers-for-policy-makers/>